

Title IX Social Toolkit

Overview

In April 2024, the U.S. Department of Education published a final rule that updates Title IX regulations to clarify legal protections for LGBTQI+ students, survivors of sexual assault, and pregnant and parenting students. These Title IX updates strengthen the legal rights of LGBTQI+ students to challenge discriminatory practices and encourage school districts to adopt more inclusive policies to ensure compliance with federal law.

Share the News

This is a big deal: for the first time ever, the U.S. Department of Education has published regulations that specify LGBTQI+ people are protected from discrimination in schools on the basis of their sexual orientation, gender identity, or sex characteristics. For decades, GLSEN has documented the persistently high rates of harassment, bullying, and assault faced by LGBTQI+ youth. Increased public awareness about these clearer legal protections is an important step in pushing forward a vision of safer and more inclusive schools.

Important Links

- GLSEN and other leading LGBTQI+ rights organizations have published know-your-rights resources for students and for educators
- GLSEN Title IX homepage

Sample Social Copy:

- 📣 Big Announcement! LGBTQI+ students now have clearer protections under Title IX. Let's ensure every student feels safe and respected at school. Learn more by visiting glsen.org/title-ix
- 📣 Breaking News: The U.S. Department of Education has affirmed legal protections for LGBTQI+ students under Title IX. Learn more by visiting glsen.org/title-ix
- 📣 Big Announcement! Title IX regulations now explicitly protect LGBTQI+ students from discrimination. This is a crucial step towards safer and more equitable schools. Learn more by visiting glsen.org/title-ix

Download Social Graphics Here

